

Handout 3: Application of provisions

Three stages of application must be covered in order to establish whether the factual circumstances are in accordance with the law (see Figure 6). The first stage involves establishing what is written in the law. The second stage involves establishing what actually happened. The third stage involves matching the provisions and the factual circumstances.

Figure 6. The three stages of application

